

Clearly, recovery of spectrum from monolithic carriers of entertainment for use in diverse educational purposes should be a priority, not the least of which is the need for additional and opposing views of current government policies and opposing the right-wing takeover of public debate (said takeover in the guise of "free enterprise" and "privatization"). The notion of giving away the precious natural resource of spectrum to commercial entities which serve only themselves is a bad idea in that it is an abuse of the public good and a theft of public resource.
